PEREZ, Santiago

VENEZUELA

Counselor of Delegation

A career member of the Foreign Office staff, Pérez was born in 1910 and obtained a law degree from the Central University in Caracas. He has been Chief of the Divisions of Protocol, Inter-American Affairs, International Policy and, presently, International Organizations. He has also attended several international gatherings, including the San Francisco Conference, 1945; the Rio Conference, 1947; and the third session of the U. N. General Assembly, Paris, 1948. At this latter meeting he became Chief of the Venezuelan Delegation when a coup d'état back home brought about the dismissal of the original chief, Foreign Minister Blanco.

In 1946 Pérez was detailed to accompany President Betancourt on a trip to Mexico and Central America. A short time later, the Mexican government conferred on Pérez the Order of the Aztec Eagle.

He is considered a conscientious, hard worker, cooperative, but very exacting. U. S. officials who have had occasion to deal with him describe him as extremely discreet and careful never to express a point of view different from that of his superiors, a characteristic which he seems to have kept through the years. His attitude has always been pro-United States, and he is known to have no patience with leftists. A strong believer in the inter-American system, he is also an advocate of international cooperation on a world-wide scale.

Remarks:

Perez Perozo was Chargé d'Affairs in Costa Rica at the time of the fall of the Venezuelan Government in October 1945. When the new administration appointed a superior officer to that post, he resigned from the service and retired to private life. 1/ However, a year later he accepted an appointment to the first session of the UN General Assembly and thereafter became a perennial delegate to the GA and specialized agency meetings. In 1948 he was appointed Deputy Permanent Representative to the UN, a post which he still holds.

He soon developed a knack for independent action in UN affairs even when his stand played into the hands of the Soviet delegates, offering as justification for his actions the explanation that directives from his Foreign Office committed him to uphold Venezuela's interests while endeavoring to act as a conciliatory instrument in the East-West conflict. 2/ Further reports indicated that he appeared to be basing his arguments on what he sincerely considered the best interests of his country, not jumping blindly on the Soviet bandwagon. At one point he seems to have corroborated this appraisal in a private conversation by expressing his belief in the danger of Soviet penetration in the Middle East. 3/, 4/

An observer who frequently dealt with Perez Perozo at the Paris meeting of the General Assembly in 1948, characterized him as obstinate and stupid. 5/ Still another described him as bureaucratic, voluble, long-winded and extremely dull. 3/ Most observers agreed, however, that although he was uncooperative in the matter of votes, he was friendly to the U.S. 3/, 6/
